

BEAR TRACKS MORNING PROGRAM NEWS

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY NURSERY SCHOOL (WUNS)

The morning Bear Tracks program is a unique experience for children who are extending their WUNS afternoon classes. This year, we have three Sun Bears and one Panda Bear enrolled so far. They arrive in the 4th classroom ready and raring to go for Bear Tracks adventures. These can include activities inside and outside the classroom.

Because of our smaller numbers, Morning Bear Trackers have been able to explore a couple of campus destinations, including a rock museum and a replica of the Mars Land Rover (both in the Earth and Planetary Science department). The children have enjoyed getting to know each other, their classroom, and all the materials and toys that spark their playful imaginations.

We look forward to sharing updates monthly about happenings in Morning Bear Tracks!

Until next time,
Ms. Colleen
